The Sant Bani School, a kindergarten through twelfth grade day school, is located in rural Sanbornton, NH. It was founded in 1973 under the guidance of Sant Kirpal Singh, and continued with support from Sant Ajaib Singh. Starting with six children the school has grown to 170 students who come from a variety of backgrounds and are encouraged in personal growth. No child is denied admission for financial reasons. Parents are involved in maintenance and fundraising events. Equality of all under God, reverence for life, and a dedication to service to others are emphasized in conjunction with a strong academic and aesthetic base.

Nourishment

Sages throughout time have recognized the balance required to nourish our souls as well as our bodies.

At Sant Bani we are closing this decade with a year-long reflection on ways we nourish our many-sided selves. We put our hands to work shaping clay and creating ceramic bowls to hold a wholesome soup. We nourish our minds with apostrophes and cosines, poets and pyramids. Our strength increases and we are warmed in the autumn air as we sink baskets on the new half-court at the East end of the track.

A kindergartner is nurtured by the smile of a high schooler as they learn to sit very still and take a few moments of silence at the end of Morning Session.

We are all nourished by giving gifts celebrating the season, gifts created by a community working together to build a school which reflects timeless values.

Each carrier is hand-sewn by Mary Petraszewski, a family friend, using recycled, brightly colored, durable fabrics. An inner padded lining helps keep the dish hot or cold. These carriers make a great gift – just add your favorite recipe or signature dish to give to friends or family. Each carrier features a unique fabric design - let us choose for you.

“Spank That Tambourine”

The Buskers (2009)

$15.00

Since 1993, Performing Arts department head Craig Jaster has also moonlighted with the Americana/roots band The Buskers, whose kitchen sink repertoire ignores boundaries between jazz, folk, and rock. The latest album, Spank That Tambourine, features Craig on vocals, piano, bass, guitar, accordion, mandola, and percussion. He also penned several songs. Fellow Buskers include Kathy Sommer on violin, Paul Hubert on guitar, and Kyle Crane and Tim Gilmore on drums. Visit www.thebuskers.com for more information. Tracy Leddy was initiated by Sant Kirpal Singh Ji in 1969 and spent several months at Sawan Ashram in India. Inspired by the Master's teachings, Tracy wrote The Song of Everything, a collection of deceptively simple and intricately layered spiritual fables, illustrated throughout by Michael Raysson. Revised and expanded in the mid-90's, The Song of Everything still sings with light and love. We are pleased to offer a companion volume to The Song of Everything, Tracy's book Allison's Shadow. This is a long mystical tale also beautifully illustrated by Michael Raysson.

Russell Perkins

The Impact of a Saint $10.00

We may have formally said goodbye to our remarkable teacher and religious philosopher, Russell Perkins, when he retired, but we know it's not really goodbye. The intangibles remain, certainly. We keep the wise counsel, memories of his stories, the little things that touched the hearts of his students and colleagues. His book gives us much to ponder as we discover the personal journey and impact of a Saint.

*Note:
Russell's book
The Stranger of Galilee is out of print.*

Kent Bicknell

Rainbow on My Heart $18.00

Kent was hoping that readers around the world would find something of interest in his memoir of the mission of Sant Ajaib Singh Ji - and his wishes have been realized. While this is Kent's intimate narrative, it cannot help but weave through the story of the school, which started with 6 students in his family's living room and now, more than thirty-five years later, continues with over 170 students. Rainbow on My Heart makes a great read for anyone interested in the foundations of the Sant Bani School.

A Long Fatal Love Chase

hardcover $21.00 paperback $7.50

Sant Bani Principal Kent Bicknell stunned the world of publishing a few years back by discovering a long-hidden manuscript by Louisa May Alcott entitled A Long Fatal Love Chase. This delightful change of pace for the author of Little Women was considered too scandalous to publish in its day. We trust you will find it a dashing good read.

Naturally Healthy Kids $25.00

Dr. Jerry Rubin, friend of Sant Bani School, started his pediatric practice over thirty years ago. He and his M.D. co-authors/colleagues embrace and present in this pediatric reference guide a broader spectrum of healthcare options than offered in traditional Western medicine. Integrating conventional medicine, homeopathy, herbal remedies, Bach flower remedies, aromatherapy, diet and nutritional supplementation, this guide is a valuable illness and wellness resource for any parent.

A Note from the Principal -

Kent Bicknell

I hope that you have found much that nourishes in this holiday catalog. In past years the school has had “Big Theme Events” that culminate in a day-long program, but this year we decided to find a theme that would span the entire year and have a series of celebrations along the way. We picked “nourishment” and already a number of sweet things have blossomed. In the words of Hillary Pincoske, our Elementary Service Coordinator:

The theme of “Nourishment” allows everyone in the school to become involved with how we contribute to the health of the school, ourselves, and the world. We can approach health from different perspectives: emotional, physical, and spiritual health for ourselves and our planet. Part of our role as teachers is to foster an atmosphere that allows for respect among faculty, staff, students, and the larger community. By nourishing this we provide our students with social learning, and that enables us to be successful in our lives. Other forms of nourishment include feeding ourselves properly, taking care of our bodies, feeding others, replenishing our natural world, and service to all.

To kick off the theme, we had a discussion with the students in grades three through twelve about what nourishment means to them and ways they feel taken care of. We had a wonderful discussion with the students and followed up by having them write on a paper raindrop what nourishes them as an individual. The raindrop symbolizes the water that nourishes the earth.

I wish that each one of you could join me in front of all those raindrops and take a few minutes to reflect on the different kinds of things that nourish us. There are lots of drops, so you have to be willing to tip your head back and gaze at the ceiling. Here are some student gems that jumped out:

Helping others feel good ∞ Go Red Sox !

Jumping on my trampoline ∞ Volunteering

Lending a hand ∞ Writing ∞ Riding my horse

Hard work ∞ HELP OTHERS.

Believe that the world is in your hands as you are going on.

Be as you want. ∞ Doritos

Playing with my dogs ∞ Skating

Helping the Franklin Animal Shelter

Having fun ∞ Sitting quietly for a minute

Hugs and kisses from family

If you would like to send in a raindrop, please feel free to do so. We will be very happy to add it to our growing collection.

In the warm spirit of the deep Nourishment that the holidays bring,

Kent
